Coptic Cairo is a subset of Old Cairo, which also contains the Babylon Fortress, the Hanging Church, the Greek Church of St. George, as well as a large number of other Coptic churches and historical landmarks. The Holy Family is supposed to have passed through this area and stayed at the Saints Sergius and Bacchus Church site, according to Christian mythology (Abu Serga). Coptic Cairo was a bastion for Christianity in Egypt up to the Islamic era, despite the fact that the majority of the churches' current architecture was built after the Muslim invasion of Egypt in the 7th century.

Ben Ezra Synagogue will be our next stop.

Old Cairo, Egypt is home to the Ben Ezra Synagogue, sometimes referred to as the Synagogue of the Levantines or the El-Geniza Synagogue. According to local folklore, this is the location where baby Moses was found.

In its genizah, or store chamber, in the 19th century, Hebrew, Aramaic, and Judeo-Arabic secular and religious manuscripts were found from this synagogue.
